CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

The ablest voters of the Fourteenth Congressional District, embracing the counties of Champaign, Coles, Douglas, Macon, Piatt and Vermilion, are requested to appear, deliberate and vote at a convention to be held on Saturday, July 1, 1873, at the Hotel Champaign, Champaign, Ill., Illinois.

Tuesday, July 2, 1873.

At 10 o'clock p.m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for representative in Congress from the Fourteenth District, it is proposed to be held in November next, and for the transaction of such other business as may conveniently come before said convention.

The convening of the convention will be followed by a meeting of all the candidates for every division of office and the respective presidential electors in 1872, who will enable the respective candidates in the next congressional election to have the number of delegates, being

Chambers, Coles, Douglas, Macon, Piatt, Vermilion, and Champaign.

GRO. SCHROEDER, Wausau.

H. W. MAGEE, Decatur.

EX-GOVERNOR DODGE, of Ohio, in answer to letters urging him to run for Congress on the Republican ticket this Fall, replies that his plans for the future will not permit him to be a candidate. He intends to resume business in Michigan, and attend to his private affairs, which have been neglected during the past few years. It is to be regretted that he cannot be induced to accept a nomination, which in his case would be equal to an election. The House of Representatives is greatly in need of many just such men as Governor Dodge.

PROF. MT. ZION.

Mr. Zion, June 26, 1873.

On last Sabbath, the 26th of June, I had the pleasure of listening to a sermon preached by Mr. Britton, the pastor of the Mt. Zion C. P. Church. His text was the last clause of the 19th verse of the 22d chapter of St. Luke, which was as follows:

"Do this in remembrance of me."

He said it was the natural desire of man to be remembered; that in all ages of the world's history the desire to win a name, to become notorious, had occupied a high seat in the human heart; that we all dread the shades of forgetfulness; that we shrink from the thought that when death overcomes us we shall be entombed in the folds of oblivion. Some persons would be disposed to say that the grave, night and tears of mingled millions than to be forgotten. It was this desire to gain re-nownce that built the tower of Babel. We can see this disposition manifesting itself in the empires of Alexander the Great, Napoleon Bonaparte, and other great military geniuses.

After reflecting for sometime upon this division of his subject, he next came to the consideration of religion. Many of us have in our possession keepsakes that we would not part with for any munificent consideration.

This is the old worn bible that mother gave me in her dying hour, that the rich silver edges of Peru cannot buy. There is father's walking cane. It was once a part of a hickory sapling that grew in the wood pasture yard. Compared with other canes it is not varnished, polished, or finely finished; but, such as it is, the diamonds of Australia cannot surpass it. Why do I prize it so highly?

Because of the associations it calls up—it moved to steady father's steps in his declining age. It was his support in the evening of life. To-day, when I view it as it hangs upon the wall yonder by the side of the old-time fire-place, what sounds do I hear? and what scenes pass in panoramic view before my mind? I hear his conversations, his reproaches, his admonitions, his moral teachings, his jokes, and his hearty laughs. I see his beaming countenance and his pleasant smile. By the laws of association it sets the bells of memory to ringing, and brings to light the wrinkles upon her walls. There is that lack of hair—the precious moments given in the last hour of mother's earthly sojourn. Can the gold of Ophir, or the rich gems of Golconda obtain it? Upon this phase of the subject he dwelt for some time, and then instigated a comparison between it and the Lord's Supper. The bread remained as of Christ's body, the wine of His blood, His life, His sacrifice, His propitiatory, and His sufferings. He spoke of the Paschal lamb, of its being eaten with bitter herbs. He said that there was bitterness in this supper when Christ instituted it, for the betrayer was there, and that there had been bitterness in every communion from that day to this.

After administering the Sacrament to his congregation, he made a few remarks, in the progress of which he said, we stand in the sacred volume that it is possible to crucify the Son of God again, if so, we think he can be betrayed again. Will any of my congregation, by this words, actions or demeanor, betray their Lord and Master before the next communion? I hope not.

I spent some time to give an adequate account of the discourse. In conclusion let me say that, from his appearance, I judge him to be about twenty-five years of age, but that his manners would be creditable to a man of mature years.

A BELLIGERENT COUNTRYMAN.

Yesterday a countryman came to town from about four or five miles distance, and pitched his house to the rock north of the park. He then proceeded to take in the town, and in his taking he got an undue proportion of Decatur whisky. This had the effect to make a fool of him, and he was soon hitting about town in a manner that attracted considerable attention. He finally found his way to the premises of Mr. E. R. Kidridge, on Decatur street, where he laid down on the porch. He was soon noticed by Mrs. E., who asked him what he wanted there. To this question he gave no satisfactory reply, but went to the well, and after using the cup for taking a drink, he threw it out of the yard. He then went to the croquet ground, where he threw the balls and mallets around promiscuously, and after amusing himself in this way for awhile he went into the kitchen, and acted as if he meant to take possession of the house.

By this time the women folks were pretty thoroughly alarmed, and they despatched a messenger to town for Mr. Kidridge, who, taking with him policeman Kelly, went to the house, where they found the fellow sitting on the porch. When the officer told him to go with him, he drew off and gave the official a dig in the face, when a scuffle ensued, in which the fellow broke away from the officer and ran toward town with the policeman in hot pursuit. Kelly discharged his revolver at the fleeing fugitive two or three times, and he finally came to a halt near the corner of Church and West Main streets, where he was captured and lodged in the culhouse. He told his captor that he had a horse here, and after securing the man in the culhouse, the animal was hunted and cared for.

The fellow gives the name of John McGuire, and says he has a farm a few miles west of town. Our advice to him would be to stay at home and plow his corn.

A CAMPAIGN SLANDER.

When Dr. H. V. Pierce was a candidate for State Senator, his political opponents published a pretended analysis of his popular medicines, hoping thereby to prejudice the people against him. His election by an overwhelming majority severely rebuked his traducers, who sought to impeach his business integrity. No notice would have been taken of these campaign lies were it not that some of his enemies (and every successful business man has his full quota of envious rivals) are republishing these bogus analyses.

Numerous and most absurd formulas have been published purporting to come from high authority; and it is a significant fact that no two have been at all alike—conclusively proving the dishonesty of their authors.

May Term, A. D. 1872.

THURSDAY, JUNE 27.
Court convened at 8 o'clock, and acted upon cases as follows:

CRANBERRY DOCKET.

Jane McQuillan vs. Joseph Thompson et al; partition and dower. Decree of sale.

Juliet Dennis vs. Alfred Dennis; dismissed for want of prosecution.

COMMON LAW DOCKET.

Pitts & Kurtz vs. Western Union Telegraph Co.; assumption. Judgment as per agreement on file.

Alfred Wunsch vs. John Lindsay and Thomas Davis; debt. Trial by jury, judgment which court adjourned to 1 o'clock.

A BELLIGERENT COUNTRYMAN.

Yesterday a countryman came to town from about four or five miles distance, and hitched his horse to the rock north of the park. He then proceeded to take in the town, and in his takings he got an undue proportion of Decatur whisky. This had the effect to make a fool of him, and he went about town in a manner that attracted considerable attention. He finally found his way to the premises of Mr. E. R. Eldridge, on Decatur street, where he laid down on the porch. He was soon noticed by Mrs. E., who asked him what he wanted there. To this question he gave no satisfactory reply, but went to the well, and after using the cup for taking a drink, he threw it out of the yard. He then went to the croquet ground, where he threw the balls and mallets around promiscuously, and after amusing himself in this way for awhile he went into the kitchen, and noted as if he meant to take possession of the house.

By this time the women folks were pretty thoroughly alarmed, and they despatched a messenger to town for Mr. Eldridge, who, taking with him policeman Kelly, went to the house, where they found the fellow sitting on the porch. When the officer told him to go with him, he drew a gun and gave the official a dig in the face, when a scuffle ensued, in which the fellow broke away from the officer and ran toward town with the policeman in hot pursuit. Kelly discharged his revolver at the fleeing fugitive two or three times, and he finally came to a halt near the corner of Church and West Main streets, where he was captured and lodged in the calaboose. He told his captor that he had a horse here, and after securing the man in the calaboose, the animal was hunted and cared for.

The fellow gives the name of John McGuire, and says he has a farm a few miles west of town. Our advice to him would be to stay at home and plow his corn. —

FRENCH SWEET, choice pastry and hot rolls every morning, at the Union Bakery.

Tak one thing needful in the household in summer, in some arrangement by which cooking may be done without heating the house, and that has been found in the shape of the celebrated coal-oil stove, which may be had of R. C. Crocker, the Water street hardware merchant. All housekeepers should examine this convenient and economical substitute for coal or wood stoves.

CATARRH
A PHYSICIAN'S TREATMENT.
50 Years a Physician, 22 Years a Surgeon, Tried Regular Remedies.
Tried Patent Medicines. Permanently cured by

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

W. SANFORD, M.D., Lancaster, Pa., has been a physician for 50 years, and has had 22 years of surgical practice. On the 1st day of May, A. D. 1850, he described his treatment, which was then unknown to the medical profession,
as follows: "I find, and have tried other means, and found them to be ineffectual, that there is no such thing as a permanent cure for catarrh, unless it be a permanent care. Your RADICAL CURE is certainly a happy combination of that most ingenious and dangerous
of all nostrums."

Dr. D. W. Gray & Son, Pharmacists and Manufacturers, New Haven, Conn.
MURRAY, N.Y., April 1, 1857.

The value of this remedy must not be overlooked
in the cure of those

SYMPATHETIC DISEASES,

A section of the Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs and Nervous System, which are affected by a severe case of Catarrh. The induced and caused condition of the mind, and the nervous system, will be fully described in the book, which is now in preparation, and will be published under the title of RADICAL CURE, perfect freedom from them in 2 or 3 years since SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE was placed before the public.

It is everywhere acknowledged by doctors and partisans to be the greatest cure ever devised.

The book will be prepared of most interesting when it is completed.

Advertising may succeed in forcing a few sales,
but when the remedy passes unnoticed, special attention to it is absolutely certain to fail

into marked obscurity.

Now in the sixth year of its existence, long ago ceased to be an experiment, and has come to be regarded as

One of the Permanent institutions of Decatur. Its circulation is larger than that of any other daily paper ever published in Decatur, and is not of the fluctuating sort,

which characterizes most of the papers in the country, and which are dropped; but on the contrary, its readers are in a large degree

made up of the very best class of our citizens,

who subscribe and pay for the paper

BY THE YEAR.

A glance at its advertising columns will show that this fact is realized by the publishers, who are among the principal business men of the city,

and who make their contracts for advertising

like this place their home.
